JOHOR, Malaysia, has it all

Johor, the southern gateway to Malaysia, has all to make your holiday an exciting and enjoyable adventure.

Watch the kuda kepang, a dance steeped in mythology. Visit the Sultan Ibrahim Building, the only living Royal Museum and the palace into a time zone of century of exquisite culture and tradition. Johor's ceramics and handicrafts are some of the most artistic and creative. Dine at the most exotic places for seafood and the laksa, Johor's popular dish. Kukup, a town famous for its mouth-watering seafood, has restaurants on stilts by the sea.

Bask in the tranquility and the serenity of the countryside, on the casuarina-lined beaches of Desaru or in the crystal clear waters of the islands for jetskiing, scuba diving or even fishing. Or walk through a million years of flora and fauna at the Endau-Rompin National Park.

Then while in Johor Bahru city, stroll through the dozen shopping malls for the best bargains in designer fashion.

You may also try your best handicap at the many challenging designer golf courses around the city, and in some major towns, by the beach.

Lots of fond memories to bring home to.

JOHOR- THE SOUTHERN GATEWAY TO MALAYSIA

The transformation of modern Johor took place in the 19th century under the reign of HRH Sultan Abu Bakar. He gave Johor the first constitution for a Malay state and introduced a proper system of administrative government and began Johor's drive toward stability and prosperity. In 1885 he was given official recognition as the Sultan of Johor by Queen Victoria and earned the title as 'the Father of Modern Johor'.

By virtue of its geographic position, Johor holds the inimitable distinction, logistically as being at the southernmost tip of the Asian continent. Strategically significant, Johor is also at the southern tip of the Malaysian Peninsular surrounded on three sides : to the west by the Straits of Malacca, to the east by the South China Sea and to the south by the Straits of Johor. The word Johor itself literally means 'precious jewel' and is taken from the Arabic word "Jauhar" showing the influence of the early Arab traders.

Johor has much to offer travellers such as its rich history, colourful culture, shopping and entertainment attractions, with a large number located in Johor Bahru city such as the Royal Museum, the Sultan Abu Bakar Mosque, the Sultan Ibrahim Building and the Istana Bukit Serene.

Under the Indonesia-Malaysia- Singapore Growth Triangle, Johor plays a major role. As the state capital, Johor Bahru is linked to Singapore by a causeway. With the high demand and rapid development, the government has built the Second Link to Singapore from Gelang Patah to Tuas, which provides better facilities for travellers. At present, Johor Bahru has also become a shopping haven for travellers especially from Singapore.

Outside the Klang Valley, Johor has the largest number of golf courses. Until 1992, there were barely 10 courses and most of them are 9 hole courses. Today, Johor have nearly 30 courses - 3 of the golf courses have 54 holes while another 3 golf courses also offer night golfing. Compared to the neighbouring countries, the Green Fees are definitely cheap.

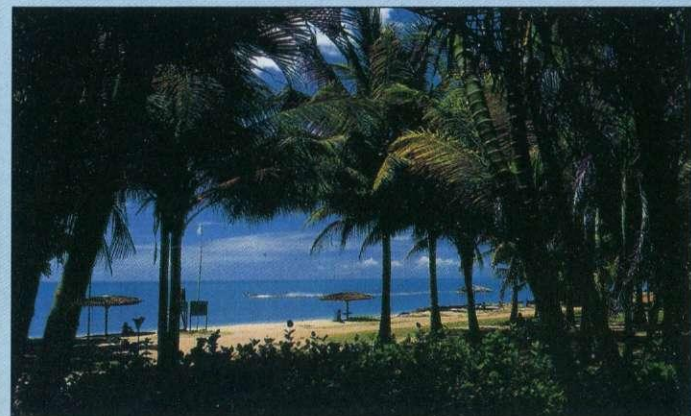

Agro-tourism comes quite naturally to the state. You can visit the rubber and palm oil plantations, and local fruit farms for day visits or long stays with a local family in the Homestay programme where you can participate in harvesting or pickings, and watch the processes involved. Alternatively, sampling the fruits can be just as fun. Compared to other tea plantations, Johor Tea is very unique as it is the only lowland tea plantation in this country. Orchid Valley, the largest tropical orchid attraction in the world has been very well received by the public since opening on 3 February 1996. Set in a beautiful exotic garden setting, Orchid Valley offers visitors an opportunity to experience oceans of exotic tropical orchids.

Johor Lama, historically holds many secrets of the past, particularly since it was once the capital of the Johor Sultanate. The capital was later moved to what is now known as Johor Bahru. Historical sites can be found along the Johor River such as Panchor, Kampung Johor Lama, Batu Sawar, Kampung Makam and Kota Seberang. There are also kelongs which are made of wooden poles topped by small shacks located near the river mouth.

Kota Tinggi is truly at the cross-roads to Johor's beautiful East Coast, great beaches along The South China Sea, magical islands, quaint fishing villages, the captivating mangrove swamps, tropical wonderland of rainforests, waterfalls, refreshing streams and cool rivers teeming with vast amount of flora and fauna in all its abundance. Aside from its strategic location, Kota Tinggi itself has some very interesting tourist attractions to offer in terms of beauty, history and place to visit. The Kota Tinggi Waterfalls for years have been renowned, not only for its continuous rush of cascading cool waters that run down the slopes originating from Gunung Panti, but also for its beautiful, tropical surroundings of flora and fauna.

South East Johor offers nature in majestic abundance where there are about 40km of tropical, golden sandy beaches that stretch from the eastern tip of the peninsular to Teluk Ramunia passing through Desaru, Sedili Besar and Sedili Kecil. Desaru, which comprises of 26 kilometers of beach front is considered the best in terms of sand, surf and sea. Desaru offers almost every type of accommodation to travellers, from low-budget campsites for the more adventurous travellers, chalets for families to luxurious hotel rooms. For those who love fishing, Pengerang is a paradise with its picturesque fishing villages.

Destined to be Asia's foremost international yachting, golfing and holiday destination, Sebana Cove's claims are fast becoming a reality in the heart of the region's fastest growing tourism belt. Sebana Cove is sprawled on 1,200 acres amidst the emerald panorama of tropical rainforests and mangrove. This total resort concept is the only development that parcels an international standard residential marina, a 27 hole membership golf course, luxurious waterfront properties and a 300 room resort hotel.

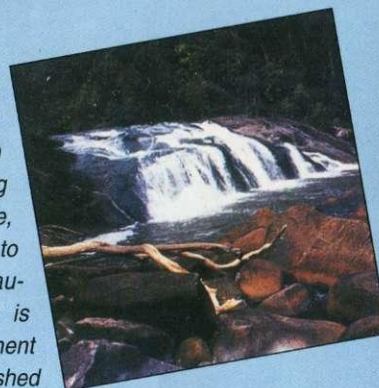

Mersing is currently the main staging point to the off-shore islands of Johor. Of all the islands, the foremost are Pulau Rawa, Pulau Sibul, Pulau Tinggi, Pulau Besar, Pulau Hujung, Pulau Tengah, Pulau Pemanggil and Pulau Aur. These islands have stretches of beautiful beaches, surrounded by crystal clear waters teeming with coral reefs and marine life. Some of the islands have been gazetted as marine parks to protect and preserve the productive ecosystem supporting some of the most active aquatic life in the world.

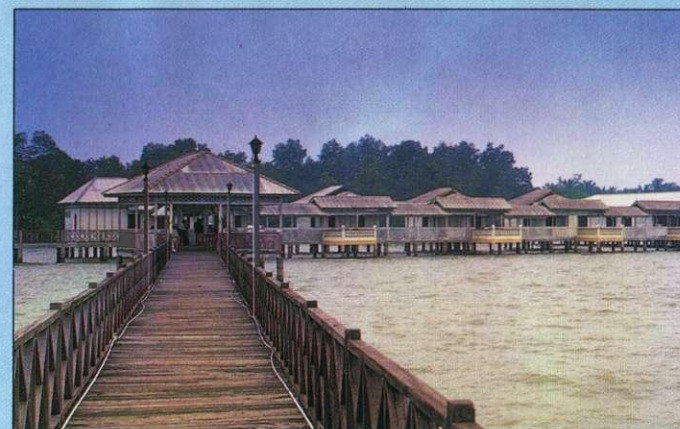

Mersing also offers travellers great scenic variety in its rural, natural and agricultural landscapes, picturesque fishing activities and attractive beaches. Gunung Arong situated 17 kilometers from Mersing, is a forest reserve well endowed with Meranti trees and a river that meanders through this area makes it suitable for picnic activities. About 15 kilometers to the north of Mersing town is Air Papan, an attractive and interesting village. Its beach is surrounded by hills with a variety of trees and palms.

There are plenty to do and see in Kluang. At nearby Gunung Lambak, there is a recreational park within the mountain rain forest, waterfalls and hiking trails. At the right time of the year, you might be able to witness the migration of the fruit bats to the mountain. The forest reserve located at Gunung Belumat in Kluang is a place with unique flora and fauna. Along the course of its rivers are several waterfalls with pools at its bottom.

Endau-Rompin National Park which is made up of pristine tropical rainforest, is the second largest national park in Peninsular Malaysia covering an area of 48 905 hectares. Here, the rock formation dating back to 248 million years. The Endau-Rompin National Park, which is mostly hilly with some prominent sandstone plateau, is the watershed of several rivers including the Sungai Endau, Sungai Selai and Sungai Jasin. Among places of interest which can be found here are the Orang Asli settlement in Kampung Peta and the waterfalls in Upih Guling and Buaya Sangkut. Endau-Rompin National Park is also special as it is the home and sanctuary to the largest Malaysian population of rare Sumatran rhinoceros, which are endangered species.

Gunung Ledang (Mount Ophir) at 1276 meters is the highest mountain in Johor and also the best known mountain in Peninsular Malaysia. Situated 38km from Bandar Maharani and close to the border with Malacca, it is very accessible. There are 2 trails to the peak either the Asahan trail from the north-west or the Sagil trail from the south. If the weather is good, the outline of Sumatera can be seen from the summit. Gunung Ledang is in fact, part of an ecological rainforest considered to have one of the richest flora species in the world.

Tanjung Piai, which is situated in Mukim Serkat, Pontian, is geographically the southernmost tip of the Asian mainland. It offers a very scenic view of the Straits of Malacca. Fishing is still the livelihood for many of its inhabitants and the area is surrounded by one of the largest mangrove swamp lands in Asia, home to the fascinating tree-climbing and scavenging macaque monkeys. Tanjung Piai is also home to one of nature's seldom seen spectacular phenomena, the fireflies. When certain conditions prevail, these fireflies will swarm and transform the mangrove swamp into a twinkling wonderland.

Over the years, millions of visitors from all over the globe have visited Johor. As the southern gateway to Malaysia, Johor has everything to make your holiday worthwhile and a memorable adventure. Naturally, with all the above wonders, our food, culture and fascinating people reflect Malaysia's diversity.

Johor Bahru

Johor Bahru is the State Capital, built in 1855 by the late Sultan Abu Bakar. The city is the southern gateway to Peninsular Malaysia and is connected to Singapore by road and rail via a causeway to Tanjung Pagar and a second road link to Tuas in the republic.

JOTIC (Johor Tourist Information Centre)

JOTIC is a one-stop centre for visitors to get a better understanding of Johor. Besides the availability of informative print materials like brochures on Johor, there are shops selling various types of handicrafts which are mostly Johor's very own. Occasionally, visitors are entertained with live cultural performances. Traditional food can also be savoured at the centre's food court.

Royal Abu Bakar Museum

(The Grand Palace Johor) This beautiful palace was commissioned by Sultan Abu Bakar who laid the foundation stone in 1864. One of the oldest buildings in Johor Bahru, The Grand Palace has a cosmopolitan architecture with clear Anglo-Malay influence. Today the palace assumes an additional role as the Royal Abu Bakar Museum, displaying treasures of the royal collection.

Sultan Abu Bakar Mosque

Officially opened by the late Sultan Ibrahim in 1890, this mosque is considered one of the finest in Malaysia. It took 8 years to complete at a cost of RM400,000. Its architectural design and setting atop a hill with sweeping view of the Straits of Johor makes this mosque a famed landmark.

MAWAR

(Majlis Wanita Johor-Johor Ladies Council) The existing Mawar house was restored at a great cost to preserve the rich architectural design cum heritage of Johor. The completed building is a stunning yet functional structure blending well with the new majestic Mawar Building.

Sultan Ibrahim Building

The massive building on Bukit Timbalan dominates the skyline of Johor Bahru. The Saracenic character and fine mosaic detail particularly of the Grand Hall make this one of the most interesting buildings in Johor Bahru.

Johor Lama

A small village in Johor Lama was the seat of the Johor Sultanate after the fall of Malacca till the final destruction of the fort in 1587. The earth mount fort has since been restored.

Desaru

Desaru-The village of casuarinas is 8 km northeast of Johor Bahru and situated on a 20 km stretch of untouched beach in the southeast corner of the Peninsular. Ideal for swimming, boating, canoeing, fishing, snorkelling or jungle trekking. Golf enthusiasts can also play on an international 18 hole course.

Mersing

The town of Mersing, 135km from Johor Bahru City is one of the staging points to the islands of Pulau Tioman, Pulau Rawa, Pulau Besar, Pulau Sibul, Pulau Sibul Tengah and Pulau Tinggi. Visitors normally stay overnight at one of the hotels in this fishing port to catch the ferry services to the islands as the high tide is usually at 9.00am.

Air Papan

The beach is a popular picnic area. The annual "Pesta Air Papan" celebrated on 1st May draws thousands of people. There are chalets for rental. Located about 15 minutes from Mersing town, you may spend your night here and laze the beach before proceeding to the islands off the coast.

Pontian

The Johor countryside is well cultivated with pineapples. Just an hour's drive from Johor Bahru City, the fishing village has a settlement of fishermen living on stilts by shore. The town is also the staging point for visitors going to Gunung Pulai for waterfall picnics, jungle trekking or mountain climbing.

Ayer Hitam

Lovers of ceramic art will find Ayer Hitam a haven for potteries, earthenware, porcelain and stoneware. The town is a popular transit point for visitors stopping for lunch or dinner on their way to Johor Bahru or Kuala Lumpur.

Pulau Tengah

This island was gazetted as a Marine Park due to the abundant marine life and rare species of fish and coral. Giant leatherback turtles come ashore to lay eggs yearly. Spacious and comfortable cottages are available for booking.

Pulau Tinggi

Pulau Tinggi is a large uninhabited island. It has a long coastline and white sandy beaches dotted with caves. The seas around it are teeming with coral, fish and reef making it a photographic haven.

Pulau Pemanggil

This magical island of sandy white beaches, hilly terrain and rich marine life is irresistible. There are chalets and long houses for visitors wishing to stay on the island.

Pulau Aur

This is another beautiful island with secluded lagoons and offshore pool perfect for bathing and a host of water sport activities. A long house on the island provides basic accommodation.

FOREST PARKS

Endau-Rompin National Park

Located on the Johor-Pahang border, this 2 1/2 century old extensive low land forest is home to several rare and endangered species. This Park is popular with conservationists and nature lovers who enjoy the wildlife and virgin environment.

make this one of the most interesting buildings in Johor Bahru.

The Royal Mausoleum

The Royal Mausoleum has been the final resting place for Royalty of Johor. The mausoleum is situated along Jalan Mahmoodiah. An area where one can't help but appreciate the serene and tranquil atmosphere befitting a resting place for eternity. The mausoleum's architecture is one of a fine, unique and aesthetic design of yesteryears

Istana Bukit Serene

His Majesty The Sultan of Johor resides in this palace. Perched on high ground with a 350 m tower, the palace is a landmark to travellers coming from the north. It contains one of the most beautiful gardens in Johor and a private zoo.

Sultan Abu Bakar Monument

This monument, created in the seafront opposite the courthouse commemorates Sultan Abu Bakar (1864-1895), as the architect of modern Johor. A bronze replica of the Johor crown surmounts the monument.

Lido Beach

This sundrenched beach of Johor Bahru, stretching over 7 km provides city tourists a variety of water adventures from canoeing, sailing to cruising.
